Lark Lane has been an area of great character ever since it was first noted in the local street directory over 150 years ago.

Maranto's inhabits a Grade II listed building dating back to the Victorian age. Throughout the years, this building has been home to a number of diverse businesses such as a Chemist, Plumbers Merchant, Hosier, and even a Wesleyan Mission Chapel.

In the early 1900's, the building was put to popular use as a cocoa room for local workers and their families. During this time, the adjoining building was put to use as a laundry, skating academy, and the premises for an auto mechanic.

Prior to the refurbishment by the Maranto family in 1983, the property had most recently been a child welfare centre, antique dealership, and as a manufacturer of window blinds.

Much care and consideration went into choosing the array of antiques and reclaimed items to accompany the beautiful Victorian exterior of the building. Many of the tables are mounted on Singer sewing machine bases. The parquet floor is from an old school gymnasium. The cast iron railings were from Preston Railway Station. The steps leading up to the balcony bar were made using pews from a derelict church. The main bar was taken from Altrincham Town Hall while the Function Room Bar doors are from an old bank.
